Why should you attend?

This symposium gives you a forum for discussion of the latest research on impacts from constructing, using and maintaining rights-of-way emphasizing wildlife and their habitats, technology, environmental stewardship and best practices.

It is a common meeting ground for individuals and groups who are concerned about the environmental impacts of rights-of-ways.

The symposium brings groups from universities, electric and gas utilities, highways, railways, vendors, government agencies, and consulting firms together in one place to allow for conversations and networking.

Join us in Charlotte to see what it is all about!
